Dear Mac

Received your letter yesterday and am writing you this on the sly in the classroom.

I'm pretty damn hot at Abe for not sending me a wire or at least writing. Pop told me in his last letter that he thought Abe would get married when he got there but I didn't know anything definite. I wanted to send him $50.00 for a wedding present.

But now that he's joined the ranks of the married legion I hope and know he'll be very happy.

Well, Mac I guess that leaves you and I. And personally I'm not ready to get married. That is - I don't think so. And I think that Ester is suffering from a case of Puppy Love. But I can't figure out Adele. And why should she get hot under the collar for a crack like that. But you know the old saying - True Love never did run smooth - and there may be something in that. And I think you're right in staying away for awhile.

Well - we graduate from this den of inequity on the 20th. And what a happy day that's gonna be. I've never had so much horse hocky jammed down my throat in such a short time anyplace before. Oh yeah man - I've got a chance to drive back to my base when I leave here, but I'll need some gas tickets. Can you spare

3 of them. Still beat hell out of riding a train, and I'll get 8¢ a mile for the journey. send them air mail so I can get them as soon as possible

I plan on applying for a leave when I get back to Launburg Minton, N.C.
When I do get it I'll wire you. And Galveston sounds pretty good to me. Maybe we can rent an apartment on the beach or something.

Well, gotta do some more studying so I'll close.

Your Bud
Sol
