Wed. nite

Hello Darling,

Just laying here in bed and thinking how nice it would be being in Houston with you to-nite. How I miss you! There must be something in that ancient adage that "absense makes the heart grow fonder" - cause it's certainly working on me.

The big boss has gone to New York on a buying trip. He certainly picked a good time because business is certainly lousy. He's due back Monday, and I imagine things will pick up because he usually throws a big sale after one of his buying trips. I certainly hope so - cause everybody just stands around looking like hungry wolves, waiting to pounce on any lone customer that might happen to stumble into the place.

I think I've been progressing some because I've got more confidence in myself. I'm doing more and more on my own hook and it's showing results - of course a few mistakes here and there, but "no lookee - no see."

Very much interested in the pending announcement. And will have some pictures made soon. Will send you the best.

Well Honey - Not much more to say except you forgot to send me Sydel's address in your last letter. Give my love to the folks and remember - I Love you

LoL
